Datical, a provider of agile database automation solutions, has announced $8 million in Series B funding, led by S3 Ventures with participation from existing investors Mercury Fund and Austin Ventures. The company will use funding to expand its platform, which provides the automation necessary for enterprises to keep up with the increasing speed of application rollouts. In addition to growing its product development team, Datical will continue to ramp up global sales, marketing and support resources and activities.

Datical DB is the only solution that automates database change management in application release cycles, which are becoming more frequent as organizations shift toward continuous delivery models and DevOps methods to meet demands from the digital enterprise. Automation at every level is a critical element of DevOps, but the database is often overlooked or becomes an afterthought when companies adopt this modern approach to software delivery.
